

Sourcing Manager

Nova Scotia Healthcare Infrastructure Projects

Halifax, NS

We are seeking a Clinical Sourcing Manager to join our team. This is your opportunity to work in a highly collaborative environment, and impact the Province's ability to provide timely, readily accessible, and reliable, furniture, fixtures, and equipment ("FF&E") needs for large capital clinical redevelopment projects.

Responsibilities

As the Clinical Sourcing Manager, you are responsible for the sourcing functions related to FF&E acquisitions within the Clinical TIR Supply Chain team. These acquisitions will focus on healthcare infrastructure projects, all of which are characterized as having significant complexity and risk.

You will oversee business requirements and deliverables associated with the FF&E acquisition process, including project management, scheduling, risk management, change management, process evaluation, as well as implementing solutions and applying lessons learned. You are comfortable working with GPO's (Group Purchasing Organizations) and understand the importance of leveraging their full potential.

You will support the development of key performance indicators that reflect appropriate allocation of financial and human resources as they apply to program delivery, all the while seeking efficiencies, cost savings, and continuous improvement. In your role, you will promote compliance with legislative and regulatory criteria in fulfilment of client business requirements.

You are essential to developing and fostering key relationships with Internal Services Department (SNS-IS) Procurement, Nova Scotia Health, along with other government departments, crown corporations, commissions, and agencies. Using your expertise, you will support operational requirements and program objectives, with long-term vision for project success.

This position provides the opportunity to communicate regularly with industry professionals and related organizations, as well as contractors and consultants, with respect to FF&E related matters.

Qualifications

You have a Bachelor's degree in Commerce, Business Administration, or Supply Chain Management, combined with a minimum of seven (7) years of related experience particularly in the field of sourcing management, including supervisory and team leadership experience. An acceptable equivalent combination of training and experience may be considered.

Familiarity in a computerized environment is necessary including spreadsheet, word processing, presentation software and email applications. Experience working with SAP/Ariba (or an equivalent supply chain system) will be considered an asset.

You are experienced with contract management in a complex multisector environment including language and law. A Certified Supply Chain Management Professional (SCMP) designation from Supply Chain Canada would be considered an asset. You demonstrate an advanced understanding of procurement processes as well as the importance of associated policies and procedures. An in-depth comprehension of their relation to effective supply chain management overall will be essential. Experience in clinical or public procurement is desirable and will be considered as an asset.

You maintain confidentiality in all your work and demonstrate an understanding of the particular sensitivity and nuances unique to a clinical environment.

You are a proven leader who links short-term goals to long-term vision. You have demonstrated success in leading and managing multidisciplinary teams and offer a diversity of expertise to your role. You inspire and lead your staff in areas of sourcing and demonstrate time managing and reporting requirements. Your ability to think proactively will aid in developing, defining, and executing effective strategies. You are experienced in using financial, conceptual, and analytical skills in all you do and apply these skills to make sound decisions and solve complex problems.

You are able to multi-task and adapt in fast-paced environments with competing priorities and strict deadlines. You must be able to attend to numerous complicated issues simultaneously, while remaining focused on key objectives. Project management experience in a complex environment will be considered an asset.
