

Maintenance, Repair and Operations (MRO) Category Manager

The Giampaolo Group was founded over 40 years ago in Toronto with one truck collecting scrap metal and has grown into a multinational metal processor and supplier. We remain a privately owned corporation with operations throughout North America with additional operations in South America and Europe. We focus on harvesting waste within the metal ecosystem by operating within the recycling, manufacturing and IT asset disposition space. We have branched out into real estate leasing and development with a keen focus on sustainable growth for all of our operating segments.

We are transforming the way we work and want you to be a part of it. As part of the Supply Chain team you will perform the purchasing activities that will benefit the subsidiaries of the Giampaolo Group by providing a purchasing approach and strategy to lower the cost of buying, reduce risk in the supply chain and increase the overall value from the supply base.

Our Supply Chain team is made up of dedicated individuals, some of whom have spent a lifetime living, breathing and (accidentally) eating scrap metal. Our operations and subsidiaries reach across North America and beyond. Our Supply Chain and Maintenance Managers are backed up by an all-star support team (including YOU). We buy and sell Aluminum, Copper, Brass, Zinc, Stainless Steel and anything else metallic that we can find a home for.
